

ABSTRACT

SY
B 7

5

The present invention provides an air flow measuring device comprising a housing with a sub-passageway having an inlet and an outlet for air flow formed in the housing, the sub-passageway further having a predefined curvature with a maximum downstream point and a flow measuring element located in the sub-passageway at a position at least further downstream from the point.

09858476-051701